He urged the students to gain rich experience in your industry and not to expect financial gains at the very beginning

Because, a good experience today will definitely get converted in to financial gains in the later stage of life. One should always continue learning even after his academics are over. Taking it further, he also explained the importance of knowing where to put your efforts rather than only working hard for something without any direction. He kept this point in front of the audience by means of a small video. He also threw some light on the importance of volunteering for certain tasks in our professional life other than your job profile, which allows us to learn new things, establishing on self as a multitasker. He kept a beautiful message in front of the audience that, if something happens as per your plan, it is a good thing, but if something happens other than our pre-decided plan, it is even better. This message was shared with the example of Jack Ma_Co-Founder of Alibaba, Colonel Sanders Founder of KFC(Kentucky Fried Chicken). At the end he concluded the session by addressing the queries & sharing various information sources that one should approach to gain knowledge about the same.
